David Harvey, The Right to the City, NLR 53, September ... City - Wikipedia Cities, characterized by population density, symbolic function, and urban planning, have existed for thousands of years. In the conventional view, civilization and the city both followed from the development of agriculture, which enabled production of surplus food, and thus a social division of labour (with concomitant social stratification) and trade. Urbanization - Wikipedia Urbanization refers to the population shift from rural areas to urban areas, the gradual increase in the proportion of people living in urban areas, and the ways in which each society adapts to this change. It is predominantly the process by which towns and cities are formed and become larger as more people begin living and working in central areas. ... Climate change and the Syrian civil war revisited ... For proponents of the view that anthropogenic climate change will become a 'threat multiplier' for instability in the decades ahead, the Syrian civil war has become a recurring reference point, providing apparently compelling evidence that such conflict effects are already with us. Why do Kenyans want to live in cities? | AfricaCan End Poverty Every day, Kenya's capital Nairobi is facing endless traffic jams. Our colleagues spend hours every day to commute to and from work. One Kenyan colleague escapes traffic by leaving home at 4.30am, others by leaving the office as late as 9pm. Given this congestion, escalating costs of living and high crime, why are Kenyans moving into cities more rapidly than ever – more Home | WRI Ross Prize For Cities Big changes Can start small. The WRI Ross Prize for Cities is the premier global award celebrating and spotlighting transformative urban change. With the generous support of Stephen M. Ross, the prize awards $250,000 to one project that has ignited citywide change.
